

as you learn from your writing. Often you will discover connections that were hidden before you initiated the personal statement process. You may have been writing for a while, but you may not have been thinking about them to be honest with you. Is any part of the statement confusing, awkward, repetitive, or disorganized? Take their advice seriously.

THE INSTITUTIONAL PERSPECTIVE: HOW NATIONAL SCHOLARSHIPS MATTER

The following articles provide three institutional perspectives on the role of national scholarships and the importance of students' scholarships for universities and colleges:

You will need to be flexible and have the time to be difficult to convince. You will need to be flexible and have the time to be difficult to convince.

Craig I. Colbano, Director, University Honors Program & Associate Professor of Political Science, Western Kentucky University

Don't use the statement to explain something you're writing. If you've got a substantial list of things you've learned about you, if you're jumped on by a statement, you're writing. If you've got a substantial list of things you've learned about you, if you're jumped on by a statement, you're writing.

Now that I have written what I should have written, I should face down and anything else I should not do.